DOOLEYS LAUNCHES PROJECT SERVICES DIVISION

Manchester and Birmingham based Dooley Associates has launched a project services division to tackle the new CDM Health & Safety Regulations* which came into force in April 2007. Dooleys has worked hard to understand the implications of the new regulations to manage risk and adherence to the new regulations on behalf of its clients.

Dooleys' directors, senior management and technical staff are involved in every aspect of the business, from strategic decisions to day to day supervision. It believes this ensures a service culture that is 100% focused on a client's needs.

Drawing from an ability to utilise a wide range of in-house competent resources, practical knowledge and technical expertise, Dooleys' primary focus is to assist clients to achieve their strategic and commercial goals.

Paul Jasper who joined Dooleys as a Director to head and expand the Project Services Division, comments:

"The market has changed in that companies that were traditionally delivering a health and safety service have backed away since the new regulations came into force. Due to our detailed understanding of the new regulations, Dooleys is well placed to fill the recent gap in the market."

Brendan Dooley, Managing Director of Dooleys comments:

"The decision to create a project services division was market-driven opposite new health & safety regulations. Paul Jasper's experience is fantastic in this area which touches all stages of the construction process. Dooleys has grown dramatically since

NOTES TO EDITORS

About Project Services

Over the last 18 months the average fine for a safety prosecution in Great Britain rose by almost 62%; noting that some 84% of cases undertaken by the Health & Safety Executive in the same period resulted in successful prosecution.

Against this background, Dooleys offers a wide range of tailored specialist safety services that can be customised individually or as part of a fully-integrated package, each designed to add value by optimising safety.

About Dooleys

Established in 2003 by Brendan Dooley and head-quartered in Manchester's trendy Northern Quarter with offices in Birmingham and southern Ireland, Dooleys combines traditional skills with the latest technology to provide a proactive, process driven construction consultancy service. Dooleys is certified by the British Standards Institute for ISO 9001 and employs 16 staff.
